Molotov Offers Plan As Bidault Urges Armistice

Proposal Is One Bright Spot In Talks At Geneva Conference

BULLETIN
GENEVA, Switzerland (UP)—Red China's Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai today demanded in the Geneva Far Eastern conference that the Western powers get out of Asia.

Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov made the proposal to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault during a private conference at which Bidault pressed for an early start of peace talks to end the bloody seven-year Indochina War.

The mercy talks, Molotov suggested, should be between the Communist forces of Indochina Ho Chi Minh and representatives of the pro-French Vietnamese.

It was the one bright spot in a day in which the 19-nation Far Eastern peace conference seemed to move steadily toward deadlock.

Secretary Says Drafted Private Had No Training

Army Official Takes Witness Stand Again For His Fifth Day

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON (UP)—Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens said today he was told that Pvt. G. David Schine paid fellow soldiers to clean his rifle, did not wear his uniform all the time, and escaped kitchen police duties while serving as a draftee at Fort Dix, N. J.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens said today that Roy M. Cohn "detailed to New York without any training" after he was drafted, but "of course I turned that down."

Stevens was in the witness chair for the fifth day as the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittees in the row between Sen. Joseph Jr. McCarthy and Army officials.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) questioned Stevens on apparent contradictions in statements of the Army and McCarthy's staff about the secretary's attitude toward Schine's assignment.

Cohn is the counsel for McCarthy's Senate Investigating Subcommittee. Schine was a former unpaid consultant to the subcommittee. He was drafted Nov. 3, Jefferson County.

French Troops Regain Sector In Rear Of Reds

New Action Centers 35 Miles Southwest Of Circled Fortress

HANOI, Indochina (UP)—The French High Command said today a 3,000-man French striking force has seized and re-occupied Muong Khouam in the rear of the Viet Minh Communists besieging Dien Bien Phu.

The action, today's French communique said, centered about 35 miles southwest of the Red-surrounded fortress.

The French force, under Col. Jean Marie Charles De Crevecoeur, has been operating in the rear of the Communists ever since they pulled back from the region around Luang Prabang, royal capital of Laos.

French authorities cautioned against describing the French Union force at Muong Khouam a relief column for Dien Bien Phu.

A small measure of relief was supplied the bone-weary defenders today by death-defying paratroop reinforcements who jumped into the tiny, flaming fortress guided by the light of exploding Communist artillery shells.

The volunteer paratroopers jumped into the tiny drop zone during the night, the French high command announced.

They were the latest in the group of French Union troops who have volunteered to join heroic defenders of the garrison, even though most of them have had no parachute training.

Transport planes ignored black, rain-filled clouds and took off from Red River delta bases to dump tons of urgently needed supplies to Brig Gen. Christian De Castries' outnumbered men.

The official report said only a "negligible" quantity of the parachuted supplies fell into enemy hands.

AN EDITORIAL Tuesday Brings Opportunity To Express Faith In Defiance

DEFIANCE VOTERS will decide an issue, vital to the future of this city, when they go to the polls Tuesday. It will be up to them whether or not three and one-half mills will be available for the next two years to help finance municipal operations.

City officials, men highly qualified by their private pursuits to be capable judges, decided some time ago that it will be "almost impossible" to carry on the essential program of the city unless this money is made available. They studied the question thoughtfully and diligently before reaching that conclusion. They are sincere in their belief that Defiance must have the levy. They are not using scatter shot in the hope that a target might be hit. They have mapped essential municipal needs and know that the money must be forthcoming if Defiance is to have services and improvements which citizens should have.

WHY IS IT SO essential that Defiance must have the money? In the first place, the levy appears more costly than it really will be. Actually it means only one mill more than citizens have been paying for the last five years. A one-half mill cemetery levy matured last year. Another two mills that were earmarked for operating expenses expires this year. So the proposal is actually to renew two and one-half mills and add only one mill. It is estimated this will mean only approximately $4 to the average taxpayer.

The money is needed to liquidate debts, finance normal municipal requirements and make it possible to pay for essential improvements, planned to meet requirements of a growing municipality.

NO FINANCIAL GENIUS is required to see why the levy is so vital. Sure, Defiance has debts. Every growing community—and certainly Defiance now fits that description—is somewhat in the red. Debt, more often than not, is a wholesome sign of community progress.

And Defiance is not unique in that it owes money, faces future demands on its purse, and so must ask additional funds. City after city in Ohio is confronted with the same problem. Many of them already have corrected the situation by voting funds, others are submitting new tax proposals, and still more are mulling over the problem.

Defiance, however, is unique in that demands have mounted steadily over a period of years, while revenues from normal sources have not kept pace. In short, costs have outstripped income.

OF COURSE, IT IS unpleasant to pay taxes. Nevertheless, a city cannot progress without price. The only question seems to be whether or not benefits to be derived will be commensurate with the price. We believe they will be. After all, the levy means only about $24,000 a year additional revenue. Consequently, the electors of this city are urged to go to the polls Tuesday and vote "yes" for the levy.

Such action will be an expression of faith in the future of Defiance, and a manifestation of the pride citizens have in their town.

No Child Shows Ill Effect From Polio Vaccine 'Shots'

Few Upset Emotionally By Needle's Prick

Not a single child has suffered ill effects from the new anti-polio inoculations although a few have been upset emotionally by the needle's sting, reports showed today.

Doctors administering the shots to school kids in a nationwide experiment to determine the vaccine's effectiveness against infantile paralysis said none of the children suffering from welts, fever, or any other immediate disorder from the vaccine itself.

At Detroit, doctors said a few youngsters became sick from "emotional reaction" resulting from nervousness over the needle's prick. Children who objected too strenuously weren't given shots.

Most of the Detroit kids bragged, however, that "it didn't hurt a bit."

In fact, doctors in almost every community where tests are being conducted praised the courage of the children as they lined up to receive the inoculations.

"I anticipated lines of crying, Thomas J. Martin at Public School 31 in Buffalo, N.Y. "There wasn't a tear all morning."

Dr. Daniel J. Hurley, Nevada state health officer, said he saw only one child cry at four schools.

where 400-500 children received shots. He said any reaction, such as that caused by an allergy to the vaccine, would have shown up immediately after the children were inoculated.

Dr. Garth G. Myers of the Utah Health Department said children who have shown sensitivity to penicillin or streptomycin were excluded from the tests.

In New York City, where more than 14,000 youngsters have been inoculated, a few were excused from taking the shots because they were frightened. Some school teachers handed out lollypops and jelly beans to ease their charges through the ordeal.

New York mothers reacted favorably to the test.

"I gave my permission, didn't any one said.

Head Of Ohio BUC States Jobless Is 'Tapering Off'

'Situation Not Too Serious Now' Is View

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation said today that the rise in unemployment is "tapering off."

"The number of persons losing their jobs is going down," Ernest Cornell, head of the BUC, said.

Cornell said this decrease in the number of persons filing claims for unemployment compensation was a "pretty good sign."

"The situation doesn't look too serious now," Cornell said.

Cornell said, however, that the number of unemployed in Ohio now is considerably above the figure for April last year. He said there were 126,857 drawing unemployment benefits last week, compared with 129,000 the previous week. A year ago, about 40,000 persons were receiving jobless benefits.

The drop in the number of jobless was greater in the eight largest cities than in the small cities. Unemployment dropped from 70,177 to 67,872 in the large cities while the smaller BUC offices reported a drop from 46,671 to 46,344.

Cleveland was the only large city to show an increase in jobless.
